

At what point in mental health care do we stop insisting that people change and simply embrace them, unconditionally, for who they are?

There is room for neurodiversity.

There are many ways to be human, and it can be deeply healing to celebrate that.

Pat Deegan

